The part of initial instalment of Rs. 297.91 crore at the Rs. 2 crore per district with entire allocated foodgrains of 20 lakh tonnes was immediately released to all the identified. 150 districts in November 2004 itself. The balance of initial instalment amounting to Rs. 1653.75 crore was released in January 2005 the moment the same was made available through first supplementary Demand for Grants and Rs. 67.79 crore in March 2005. As such, the States have been given adequate resources immediately on the launching the programme and there is no reason the States should delay payment of wages under the NFFWP.

(b) to (d) Every State has their own system of schedule of rates for payment of wages under the programme. Notified minimum wages are to be paid. Wages are paid through a mix of cash and foodgrains. 5 kg. of Foodgrains has to be paid per manday and atleast 25% of the wages in cash. In case any of the two components is not adequately available, it may be compensated with other component. This has been done to take care of late or inadequate supply of foodgrains by the FCI. This also ensures unhindered implementation of NFFWR
